Armagnac/Brandy/Calvados/Cognac:

What is it? Grape brandy using generally highly acidic and unusable for wine making grapes, distilling once in Armagnac's case, and twice in Cognac's, to then be rested and mellowed, in the most hallowed of French Chateaus. Brandy from around the world is also made in similar fashions, but Cognac and Armagnac still stand alone, as the iconic symbol of true style and wealth, adhering to strict rules of production. Calvados is made in a similar fashion but from apples and pears, then aged in French oak again, for added depth and richness. Deep, complex, and delicious, sample some of the finest Cru's here!

Herbal/Absinthe/Liqueur

What is Liqueur? Sweetened alcohol cordials basically, designed to carry flavour and enhance digestion with combinations of herbs and spices, as well as fruits and flowers, roots and other botanicals. Try neat or on ice, in cocktails or with soda. And no, Absinthe isn't hallucinogenic, it's just really tasty and high proof, so be responsible

Scotch:

What is Scotch? A vaunted spirit distilled in most cases from a single strain of malted barley, in the case of a single malt coming from a single distillery, and blends either coming from multiple or using different years distillations to achieve a balanced flavour profile. With over 130 distilleries in Scotland, we can only fit so many on the back bar. There's something for everyone's regional fancy, so get tipping! Some smokey, some floral and light, everyone a unique delight!

Irish:

Irish whiskey is whiskey made on the island of Ireland. The word 'whiskey' (or whisky) comes from the Irish uisce beatha, meaning water of life. Irish whiskey has a smoother finish as opposed to the smoky, earthy overtones common to Scotch whisky, which come largely from drying the malted barley using peat smoke.

Bourbon:

What is it? Whiskey distilled from a minimum of 51% Corn, and made in the USA. Aged in freshly charred American Oak barrels, and rested for 3-7 years generally. This spirit is long, spicy, elegant and rich. A tapestried history of bootlegging and tariff dodging, wild times and high treason sticks to this spirit, and the blood sweat and tears of industrial America and indeed the entire countries fight for liberty and identity can be sampled in this liquid gold. Pisco Unaged grape brandy from South America, generally using the Quebranta, Torrontel, Muscatel, Mollar and Albilla grapes. Originating in the 16th century in Peru and blossoming into Chile, causing quite the controversy over the Pisco Sour, both countries national cocktail. Dry and bracing, with fruit and flowers on the palate and nose, and a distinctly clean and crisp finish.

Rye:

What is it? Whiskey made from a mash bill that is over 50% rye grain, generally composing of corn, barley or wheat to make up the remainder of the mash. Generally described as spicier still and more peppery than bourbon, rye has a huge affinity in cocktails and is a workhorse for all things stirred or shaken. Manhattans anyone?

Gin

What is it? Distillates of all sorts and styles, made from stranger and stranger ingredients as time passes. Originating from Holland in the early 15th century as a means to transport spices and goods in the form of Jenever, and soon adopted by the British as a useful means to distribute quinine to the troops in its far off campaigns in larceny and shenanigans, this bright, floral and botanical driven drink is the current darling of the drinks world, with more gin brands developing by the week than you can literally fathom. Rum

What is it? A distillate made from sugar cane byproducts or refined sugars, on occasion using fresh cane juice and raw plant material. Rum is one of the most wonderful and diverse spirits on the planet, sporting more styles and distilleries across the globe than can be counted. Made in nearly every country on Earth, it is also arguably Australia's National Spirit, with a truly complex and bloody history to look back upon. Endless cocktail powerhouse, and a unique sipping experience in every bottle. Expect spices and rich layers of fruits, sugars and deep complex notes like rubber and rotting vegetation! Spiced Rum

What is it? Generally, a lightly aged rum pulled from the barrel around the 2yr mark and then modified with often sugar, natural or unnatural spices and flavouring agents, as well as colourings and additives. We attempt to strive away from the more artificially spiced rums, and tend to stock rums that rely on only minimal addition of sugar to the finished distillate. Regardless, sipping is so easy its almost criminal!

Tequila

What is it? Distilled from the Weber Azul (Blue Agave), this luscious, rich and often misunderstood spirit is a truly terroir driven experience. Each Agave plant takes from 7-25 years to mature, and each bottle of tequila takes, 1 Agave. Mother Nature is most efficient. With only 4 certified regions to produce Tequila in, a large portion hails from Tequila town, whose history runs deep and intricate, with other certified producing regions being Tamaulipas, Nayarit, Michoacán, and Guanajuato. Each distillery carries a specific NOM or Number of Origins of Manufacture in brief. Fruity, bursting with mineral and vegetal flavours and elegant smoke. loose yourself in a flight of fine sipping tequila's tonight!

Mezcal/Agave Distillates

What are they? Distilled from a combination of agave plants from over 130 different varieties and sub-species from the highly regarded Blue Agave. There are also a rich and varied range of styles of Agaves and Mezcals, and we unfortunately see only a handful here, but some of the best are here on view. The biggest difference between these and Tequila is the method of production and distillation, with Mezcal and its varieties being cooked in the earth on lava rocks, and then distilled in clay pots, whereas Tequila usually involves the steaming of the agave before distillation in copper pot stills. Deep, smokey, fruity and funky, with spices and mineral layers. Truly unique.

Vermouth

What is it? Deriving from a funny little world play off the French enunciation of the German word 'wermut' (Wormwood) this comprises fortified, sweetened and aromatized wines from around the globe. These venerable and delicious cocktail mixers are probably what you avoided at your great-aunt's house when you raided the booze cabinet as a child, but you really should have started here. Supple and luscious, dry and floral, sweet and bracing, spicy and earthy, these are the link in all your drinks, the pizzazz in your Martini, and the balance to your Bronx. Don't be shy to try neat or with soda, and drink light and refreshing!

WELCOME TO MEET Restaurant & Bar

a place to eat, drink and play.

We have two menus at Meet, both based on a sharing concept where the whole party enjoys the various flavors of Brazil and South America. Meats, vegetables, accompaniments, and sides are all carefully prepared by our chefs and cooked over charcoal and ironbark wood.

Our Share plates menu consists of small and large plates designed to be shared. Focused on local produce that follows a farm-to-table concept. The meals are served progressively through the evening without the concept of starts and mains or individual meals.

The all you can eat Churrasco is more of a feast concept. With a wide range of choices between meats and sides you will not leave hungry. The food runners will continuously serve the Brazilian feast through the evening and at the end you will be able to request a repeat of your favorites, try one of our delicious desserts, or both!

After dinner, please feel free to move into our bar, where we have live entertainment every Friday and Saturday night.

Full Churrasco - $68
